

Senior Class prepares as graduation approaches

Graduation came one step closer for most seniors with the ordering of caps and gowns and graduation announcements during the first semester.

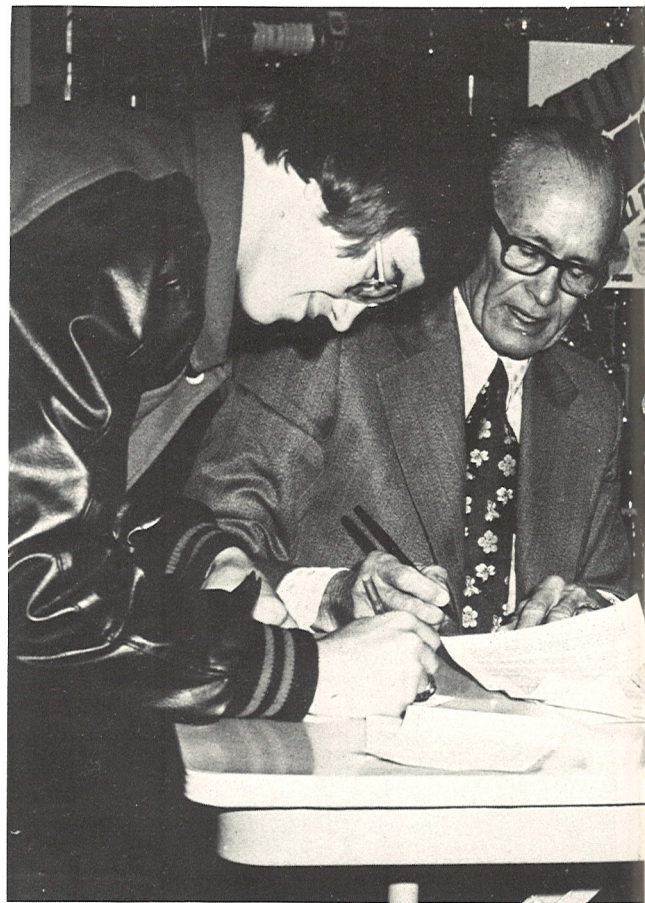

Seniors were given a choice about cap and gown color this year but voted that everyone should wear all black. Tassles were red and black while honor chords remained red as they had been in the past.

Handling the voting and measuring seniors for their caps and gowns were the major duties of the Senior Activities Committee.

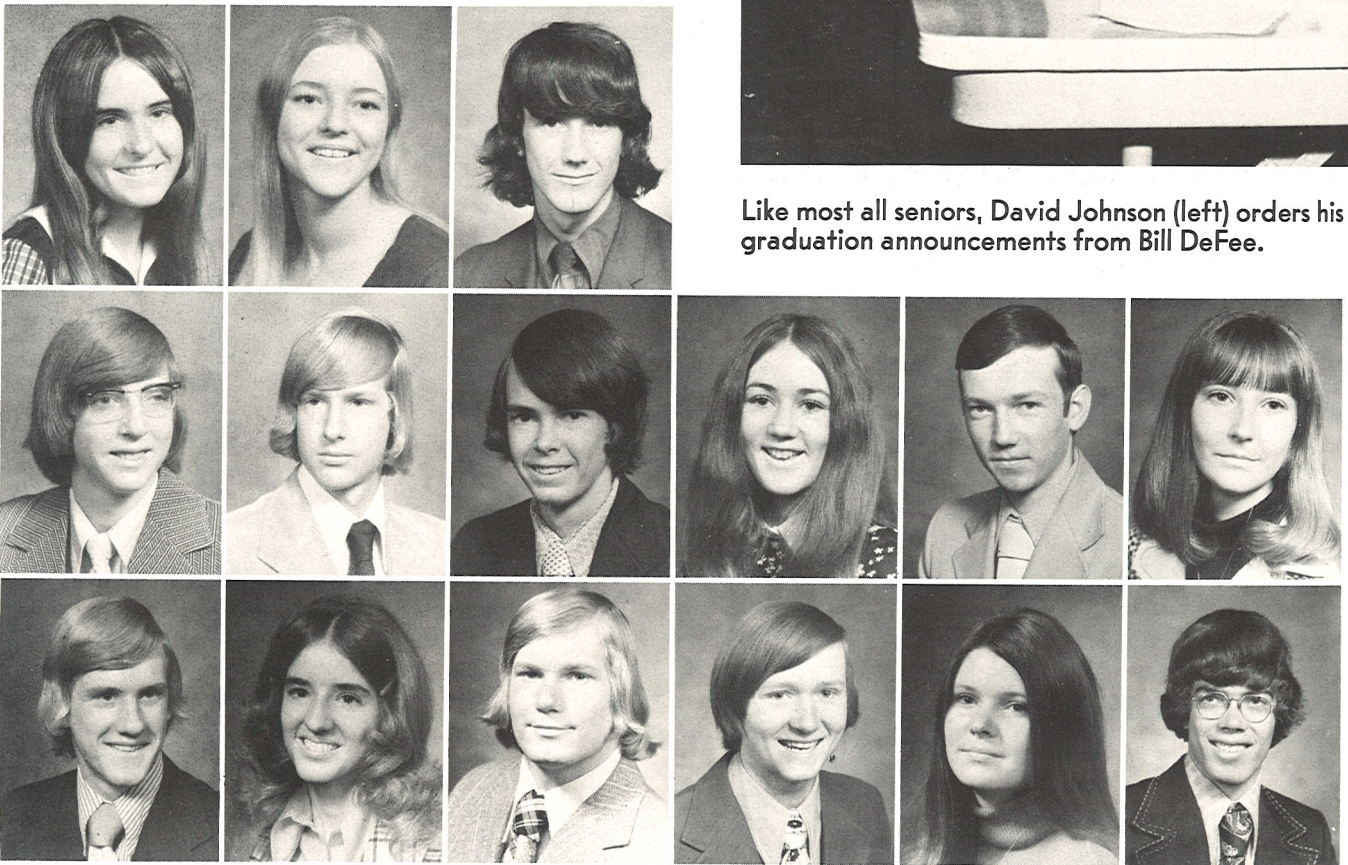

Members of the committee also took up the $7 fee for caps and gowns during November. Each homeroom representative turned in the fees to Mrs. Laura Huckabey, committee sponsor.

Among other jobs of the committee were the tasks of deciding on a graduation theme, choosing a program design and organizing the spring commencement exercises.

Committee members also assisted with the ordering of graduation announcements in senior homerooms.
